Mr. Davis on English Explorations in Palestine.

By the foreign mails we find that Mr. Jefferson Davis' remarks on the Holy Land at Leamington, England, erroneously reported by the cable as a lecture, were no more than a little speech made by him on rising to second a vote of thanks to a gentleman (Rev. Dr. Tristram) who had lectured on "Buried Jerusalem" before the members of the Local Philosophical Society. Mr. Davis made various allusions to the Holy Land as the cradle of humanity, speaking of civilization as well as of the Christian religion. Referring to the demolition of the Temple, he observed that, although all must regret the ruin of a structure so much connected with the early history of religion, yet we might be consoled by the belief that it was necessary that the Temple should fall, in order that the star of Bethlehem might be seen of all men. He expressed his gratification at hearing from the lecturer that the Palestine explorations had been inaugurated under the patronage of Englishwomen and executed by Englishmen. It was becoming a woman-for she was the last at the cross and the first at the sepulchre—to commence the explorations in confirmation of the great truths of Christianity. And it was well for Englishmen to undertake the work of exploration, for their blood was mingled with that of the Norsemen, with the Saxons, the teachers of the harmonious conglomeration of liberty and law, community independence, individuality and self-will, and with the troubadour, the knightly soldier, represented in the Norman. These three elements combined in Englishmen, led to adventure, to love of truth, and gave the heart to do whatever the will might desire. The divine truths upon which our happiness here and hereafter was engrafted had been more and more established as science had trodden in the path of revelation. Such explorations as those which Dr. Tristram had shared had revealed things not before fully comprehended, and shown that, as they progressed, truth would be more and more established, "for her years are eternal."

Suicide of a Boy in Philadelphia—A Remarkable Case.

In Second street, next door to Southwalk Hall, is a drug store. Its proprietor had an employee, a lad twelve years of age, who washed bottles, swept out the store and ran errands, as occasion called for. He was a bright little fellow, who lived with his mother in a line of buildings contiguous to the hall, known as Placid place. The mother is a woman named Crossby. She seems to have visited the boy with oft-repeated and severe flagellations. On Tuesday night, 24th ult., while for a moment he was alone in the store, yearning from the lash, he went to a shelf in the store upon which was an array of poison, and bearing above this inscription a skull and cross bones. The child knew the emblems upon the bottles indicated poison. Throwing into one of them his pocket knife he withdrew a modicum of white powder, wrapped it in paper, and took it with him to his home. He ate his frugal supper and retired to sleep. He arose next morning, took his powder and swallowed it. The result was almost instantaneous. The mother, who ended almost to distraction, sent for Dr. Thos. S. Reed, whose residence is nearly opposite to the Hall. The gentleman was in an instant at the bedside. He pronounced the child to be poisoned. The little fellow retained consciousness sufficiently long to tell what he had done, and then died. All the indications show that the jar or bottle from which the child took the poison contained strychnia. He had scarcely swallowed it before its effects upon the circulation were manifest. Dr. Reed could administer no antidote with any effect. Collapse followed. Half an hour after the drug was swallowed the child was a corpse.—North American.

—The immense speed of sea waves is astonishing. The subject has attracted attention since the recent earthquakes. Commodore Wilks, of the United States exploring expedition, in Vol. IV., page 227, of his report, relates that a wave passed from Tutuila in the Samoan group, to Oahu, Hawaii, in two hours and 30 minutes—the actual distance being 2,250 miles—the waves proceeding from south to north at the rate of 900 miles an hour.

—Gen. Cole has been acquitted of the murder of Hisecock, at Albany, New York. The verdict is a singular one. The jury found that at the moment of the killing the General was insane; and, at the instant after the homicide, he was sane.

—Bell Boyd, the famous rebel spy, so well known to hundreds of Confederate officers, and so famous for her work of adventures, has been playing an engagement at the National Theatre, Cincinnati.

—The enormous enterprise of piercing the Alps with a tunnel is said to be three parts finished. The Mount Cenis tunnel, which is to be seven and a half miles in length, was commenced in November, 1860.

—Major A. E. Richards, formerly of Mosby's command, a native of Virginia, and General Basil Duke, of Kentucky, have formed a partnership, and are now practicing law in Louisville, Ky.

—The result of the Cuban revolt is still doubtful. Many native Cubans take sides against the revolutionists. Slave property has fallen twenty-five per cent.

—Mr. E. B. Washburne, of Illinois, succeeded late Thaddeus Stevens as the Chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations.

—Four thousand and twenty oranges have been grown this season upon one tree at Montgomery, near Savannah.

—Nothing remains of Fort Lafayette but a ruined mass of brick and mortar. The loss to the Government will be about $250,000.

—If you would make yourself agreeable wherever you go, listen to the grievances of others, but never relate your own.

The Planet Jupiter.

The chief arguments for the habitability of Jupiter are founded on his enormous magnitude and the magnificence of the system which circles around him. It seems difficult to imagine that so grand an orb has been created for no special purpose, and it is equally difficult to conceive what purpose Jupiter can be said to fulfill unless he is the abode of living creatures. He is, indeed, an object of wonder and admiration to our astronomers; but the mind must be singularly constituted which can accept the view that Jupiter was constructed for no other end. When every object around us suffices to exhibit the omnipotence of the Creator, we require no such evidence as is afforded by a globe exceeding the light 1300 times and more in volume. The light afforded to us by Jupiter is so insignificant, also, that we cannot suppose him to have been created for no other purpose than to supply it. His influence in swaying the planetary motions is important, and he also appears to have a noteworthy influence on the sun's atmosphere; but neither influence seems necessary to the well being of the inhabitants of the earth. Thus we appear forced to concede that Jupiter has been constructed to be the abode of living creatures.

The enormous volume of Jupiter is in part counteracted—so far as its influence on the inhabitants of Jupiter is concerned—by the small density of the planet, inasmuch that the attraction of gravity at his surface is not so much greater than terrestrial gravity as might be supposed. Yet it exceeds the latter more than two-fold; so that the weight of an inhabitant of our earth would be increased in about the same proportion if he were removed to Jupiter as it would be diminished if he were removed to Mars. The highest men on earth would find themselves as unwieldy as our Lambearts and Buntings if they were placed on Jupiter's surface. We are compelled to recognize in this circumstance a peculiarity which would render Jupiter unfit for beings constituted exactly like the inhabitants of earth; but modifications not much more marked than those which distinguish the various species of the same genera on earth, would be sufficient to enable terrestrial races to endure, without discomfort or inconvenience, the powerful gravitation experienced by the inhabitants of Jupiter.

Self-made Men.

We do not wonder that great men have been born mechanics; for those who have been brought up exclusively in drawing-rooms, intelligence is a game, a recreation; for those who have held the sword or helm, who have braved the plough or worked with the chisel, intelligence is a necessity. The mechanic, the soldier, the sailor, the farmer, the laborer, a beauty, a worship, and a love divine. It is from the stall, the shop, the work room, that the most powerful minds have issued. Malire, the upholsterer, Burns from the farmer's, Shakespeare from the hosier's shop, Rousseau from the wheelwright's. Long engaged in a struggle with physical nature they all took refuge in the free domain of thought. Even an inferior mind would soon become tempered to strength in these mechanical applications of the mind.
